Environetics Welcomes Mary Beth Di Figlia, AIA

Environetics is proud to announce the addition of Mary Beth Di Figlia, AIA, as a Senior Associate. Mary Beth will provide leadership in the firm expanding the culture and brand of Environetics as a highly integrated A/E/I practice known for thought leadership, innovation, collaboration and ultra-responsive service.

Previously a Principal with Winter Street Architects in Salem, MA and Kling Stubbins (Jacobs) in Philadelphia Mary Beth joins Environetics with 23 years of significant experience in large, complex projects for the corporate, pharmaceutical, healthcare and higher education markets. Her past clients include Vanguard, Merck & Co., Alexandria Real Estate Equities, Inc., Medtronic, Wyeth (Pfizer), Cephalon, DuPont, Harvard Medical School, Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, Johnson & Johnson, Novo Nordisk and the University of Massachusetts.

A thoughtful champion of design excellence Mary Beth combines architectural vision with strategic business thinking offering clients an innovative approach to solve their unique challenges. Mary Beth is a registered architect, NCARB Certified and licensed to practice in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

“I am excited to return to Philadelphia and embrace my new role at Environetics and work alongside a diverse group of creative individuals,” says Mary Beth.

“We are thrilled to have Mary Beth join Environetics. She brings to the firm a wealth of knowledge and strategic thinking that complements our team. She will be a valuable asset working with the leadership team to shape the direction of our professional practice, mentoring staff and expanding our reach into current and new markets,” says Jeff Morgan, AIA, Principal.

The addition of Mary Beth to the Environetics team strengthens the firm’s expertise, complimenting recent project experience with such clients as CSL Behring, Accolade, ViroPharma, FMC, The College of New Jersey, Lourdes Health System, and University Medical Center of Princeton.
