Environetics Welcomes Sarah Minges

PHILADELPHIA, PA (July 1, 2015) – Environetics is pleased to announce the addition of Sarah Minges to the firm’s Interior Design team. Sarah is a graduate of Savannah College of Art and Design where she received a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Interior Design. Sarah brings more than 10 years of professional experience, including extensive expertise in corporate office design solutions.

Sarah’s experience managing projects have allowed her to bridge the gap between providing innovative design solutions with an in-depth understanding of the industry’s leading technology and documentation standards. As an Interior Designer for Environetics, Sarah’s role will support the firm’s integrative approach to the design process, from programming to implementation.

“We couldn’t be happier to have Sarah join Environetics. She’s a highly skilled Interior Designer with an impressive array of experience that will continue to elevate the firm’s place in designing high-performance, state-of-the-art facilities,” said Judy Channick, Principal, Interior Design.

Sarah will be a valuable asset to the firm’s Interior Design Team, complimenting their portfolio of work with her recent project experience with clients such as TD Bank and Penn Mutual. Sarah is involved in a number of professional organizations such as CoreNet, IFMA and ULI’s Young Leaders program.

She previously worked as a Senior Interior Designer with NELSON, and held leading positions in the Baltimore market with The Verve Partnership and Design Collective, Inc.
