Environetics Drives Workplace Excellence in Businesses Throughout Los Angeles County

Interior architectural design firm, itself ranked #2 for small firms, created empowering workspaces for five companies listed on the Los Angeles Business Journal's Best Firms to Work For in 2009.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., October 27, 2009 – Environetics, a full-service interior architectural planning, design, LEED consulting and space-planning firm, today announced it designed sophisticated, empowering workspaces for five companies ranked in the top 30 by the Los Angeles Business Journal as the best companies to work for in Los Angeles in 2009. Environetics' clients include: The TCW Group, Inc., ranked 4th among large companies; Insomniac Games, Inc., ranked first, CPEhr listed sixth, M. David Paul & Associates named 12th and Altour ranked 30th for medium-sized companies. Environetics was recognized as the 2nd best small company to work on the prestigious annual list, along with its clients.

"While we are gratified to once again be recognized by the Los Angeles Business Journal, our greater fulfillment comes from knowing we contributed to our clients' success by creating environments that foster professional development, individual achievement, a strong sense of culture and successful teamwork," said Rodney Stone, president of Environetics.

Environetics' second place Los Angeles Business Journal ranking complements the recognition it received from ZweigWhite and Stagnito Media, which pronounced the firm 2nd best among small architectural firms in the nation in the annual ranking of top industry firms. Environetics' commitment to client satisfaction was cited as one specific reason for its high ranking. ZweigWhite, a management consulting and research firm, and engineering media specialists Stagnito Media selected Environetics for its commitment to providing a positive work environment, and challenging and interesting work opportunities. The selection was based on a comprehensive survey of workplace practices and an independent survey of employees.

"We are continually pleased with Environetics' creative designs and its ability to completely mirror and reinforce our own culture and brand," said founder and CEO Ted Price of Insomniac Games, which has worked with Environetics on several projects at its headquarters. "Our new lobby space now blows people away."
